

To whom it may concern:

Most urgently needed in regard to public information is a reduction of the ability of corporations to engage in newspaper-broadcast cross-ownership.

At a time of crisis, the dangers of such overwhelming concentration in media are more glaring than ever. The changes underway will lead to a diminution of the public to have a variety of media outlets from which to make well informed decisions about their lives and government, unless that is the intention of this policy--to make increasing profits for mega-corporations at the expense of the public good. So, what else is new?

Sincerely,
